Compliance Challenges in the Railroad Industry

Is your organization compliance & safety ready?

Today's railroads have lower employee injury rates than most other major industries. Effective learning, delivered in a classroom, via a simulator, or on the job, is critical to compliance and the continued safeguarding of employees.

Compliance Challenges in the Railroad Industry

Addressing Compliance Challenges

Innovative rail organizations must address new and changing training requirements and create flexible training programs that meet the demands of government regulators. Forward-thinking rail operators will utilize a modern LMS to:

- Develop complex reports required by regulatory agencies
- Provide content and courses to upskill workers
- Alert employees when training opportunities are available
- Measure learning outcomes, not just course completions
- Establish training partnerships with associations and educational institutions
- Equip managers with tools to measure and develop staff
- Use virtual reality (VR) and augmented reality (AR) tools to improve safety training
- Track certifications in a centralized location
- Attract and train new workers to replace retirees

With the Meridian LMS, railway organizations can drive growth with the ability to train a new generation of workers, decrease compliance risks, and maintain a safer work environment. Visit our website to learn more.
